Dear Mr. Warburton:

On my return from my holidays I have your letter which has been delayed on account of my absence.

I believe that a man's education is only begun at school, that he lays the foundation on which he is to build afterwards, and that the additional education that he will get will depend upon the way in which he will use his leisure time.

I have often said in public that a man's success depends largely on his use of margins. If a young fellow will use his spare time under competent leadership, such as he will get in many institutions, including the Y.M.C.A., he should in time be able to make himself a well-read man, competent to have a good judgment on matters of public interest, and to take his place among people of intelligence. In languages also one can be moderately well learned, at least sufficiently for a reading knowledge of them, by a young fellow of good capacity who will use his time well under proper direction.

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.

Dear Mr. Warburton:

I am sorry that I have an engagement for next Monday evening that will make it impossible for me to be present at the formal opening of the Y. M. C. A. I wish you, however, every success both in the meeting and in the future conduct of the Association in your new quarters.

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,
